

DAVID RENAUD
VIGNERON

PROFILE

Sometimes referred to as the red wine of Chablis, Irancy is in the Côte Auxerrois, just north of the Cote d'Or. It is a 100% red wine appellation devoted to the production of Pinot Noir. David Renaud's domaine, which has been in his family for four generations, sits on 11 hectares under vine on soils of Kimmeridgean marl and brown limestone. It unfurls within the best territories in Irancy, Vincelottes and Cravant, at altitudes ranging from 150-250 meters. "I like to think of myself as an orchestra conductor," says Renaud, "who is able to create beautiful compositions thanks to the talented people working with and around me." He continues: "Without these people wine would not exist, and I would not be a winemaker."

César is an ancient grape that is native the Irancy region. It naturally yields darker, more tannic wines than Pinot Noir, making it useful as a blending grape to provide body and color.
