Znovin Znojmo Saint Laurent

Vino z Czech is an umbrella label encompassing several producers from the Moravia region in the Czech Republic. With a winemaking history dating back to Roman times, this area is the focus of a recent resurgence in quality. Sharing a border with northern Austria, this cool climate lends itself to high quality wines, and the winemakers involved in Vino z Czech are proud to present small-production offerings from this up-and-coming area. Though made by different winemakers, the wines share much in common. Producers in this area use traditional methods, using no additives and only minimal fertilizers, pesticides, and fungicides. Since the area allotted for vineyard land is limited and further expansion isn't possible, vineyards in the area are by definition sustainable, since they need to be able to produce for further generations.
