Santa Cruz Mountains, California

Score: 91

This arguably possesses the most elegant and certainly floral-inflected nose in the range with its cool and admirably pure red currant, cherry and softly spiced aromas. There is fine mid-palate concentration to the layered and vibrant medium-bodied flavors that possess a succulent, indeed even velvety mouth feel before concluding in a sappy, dusty and firmly structured finale. This is built-to-age and will clearly need to though importantly for those who prefer their pinots on the younger side, it's not presently austere.
