Drew Family Winery
Pinot Noir “The Fog-Eater” 2014
Anderson Valley, California

92 Points

The 2014 Pinot Noir Fog-Eater is one of the more delicate, perfumed wines in the lineup. The flavors are bright, focused and nuanced throughout. Crushed flowers, mint, earthiness and savory herbs add further shades of dimension. Drink this sensual, gracious Pinot from the deep end of Anderson Valley over the next handful of years.

Jason Drew made some of the most distinctive, pure 2014 Pinots and Syrahs I tasted on my January trip. Drew's wines capture the essence of a number of top sites in Anderson Valley, where he is based, and in the nearby Mendocino Ridge appellation. The wines are deceptively medium in body in that they have the ability to convey notable depth and intensity, but without excess weight. I can't recommend these 2014s highly enough. (AG)
