Domaine de la Pousse d'Or
Chambolle-Musigny "Les Amoureuses" 2015
Burgundy, France

Score: 92-94

Firm reduction renders this tough to assess aromatically. There is excellent mid-palate concentration to the more obviously mineral-driven medium weight flavors that possess a polished and very classy mouth feel before culminating in a reasonably well-balanced, lengthy and compact finale. While there is a hint of warmth it's not sufficient to really detract from the overall sense of harmony. I would further note that this is also quite firmly structured and a wine that is unlikely to make for especially good early drinking.
