Cost: $13

The 2011 Capucine Blanc (95% Sauvignon Blanc and 5% Grenache Blanc) exhibits hints of grapefruit, bay leaf and delicate orange skin in a fresh, light to medium-bodied style. Drink this excellent value over the next 1-2 years. This estate owned by the Borie family is one of the largest in the Corbieres region. They make an assortment of wines, including the following impressive, value-priced offerings. Although it is listed at $40 retail, readers may want to check out the 2009 Corbieres Boutenac Atal Sia, which I scored 92 points. It is one of the most gorgeous Corbieres I have tasted in many years. This inky/purple-hued, rich, full offering is loaded. The blend is 45% Carignan, 30% Grenache, 20% Mourvedre and 5% Syrah.
