The 2012 Volnay 1er Cru Clos d'Audignac comes from the 0.80-hectare monopole whose population was planted back in 1966. It has more red than black fruit profile on the delicate, pretty, feminine nose that unravels temptingly in the glass. The palate is smooth and harmonious on the entry, the oak here perhaps just needing more time to fully enmesh, but the finish has an appealing roundness and sucrosity. This is a lovely, very natural Volnay that will be approachable, yet has the substance to age well
