The 2013 Irancy Vaupessiot has a lovely bouquet: cranberry, wild strawberry, a hint of Earl Grey and forest-floor scents that are very focused and well defined. The palate is chewy on the entry and gently grips the mouth, quite assertive with lacquering black cherry and strawberry notes with a touch of cola toward the tannic finish. I would like a little more "Pinoté" to be expressed on this wine, especially on the finish. I would be intrigued to revisit this after another 12 months.
