The 2012 Taurasi is a ripe and voluptuous expression of Aglianico from a warm vintage. The fruit is soft and yielding with thick layers of black cherry, blackberry confit and jammy berry. The tannins have been softened, and the wine is broad and loosely knit in terms of texture. The wine finishes with a point of sour fruit, but that ripeness does take away from the grape's natural complexity. This wine is aged in barrique for 14 months. (ML)
